THE STREETS AND SIDEWALKS OF LOUISVILLE. During last year, the General Council ordered quite a number of sidewalks to be curbed with the regular ordinance curbstone, and re-paved .-Although the quantity of such work then done was considerable, yet, in comparison with the amount which really ought to be done, it is but as a drop in the bucket. To leave one of the miserable, worn-out sidewalks, supported by the common, old-fashioned pretext for a curb-stone, and step on a newly paved footway, with the long, neatly dressed, substantial curb required in all the present contracts, presents about as strong a contrast as one could well conceive of. On the old pavements, irregular, worn-out, and dilapidated, if you happen to walk of an evening, you run great risk of treading in a hole and dislocating your limbs, or of stumping your toe, and breaking your neck; while on the new pavements, no matter if it is a dark, rainy night, when, by the calender, the moon ought to shine, (but does not,) and the gas lights are not burning, you can move on boldly, and in security, confident that the next step you take will be like the last-on a smooth, regular, and even surface. So much for the comfort of the thing. Now take it by daylight. We ask our readers, as they pass back and forth through the streets, to pause and look at the property fronted by one of the new curbs and pavements, and then compare it with an adjoining piece of property fronted by the old rickety, rattletrap pavements, so common in the city, and say if he does not think the new pavement enhances the value of the property more immensely popular and be a decided hit. Price than the cost of the improvement. We have heard at least fifty citizens, owners of property, express themselves to this effect, and have no doubt that nine-tenths of the property holders entertain the same belief, especially in the business and populous parts of the city, where rents are high, and both houses and pavements in constant occupancy and active use

We hope, therefore, that the city fathers will begin at once, early in the season, and contract as rapidly as possible for a general improvement of this nature on all streets that need it. They may be well assured that they will be sustained by public sentiment, in carrying out this or any ther public improvement of such general immoting the convenience of the citizens, and of urging the completion of what will form one of the

The fact that he drew prizes at once awakened the suspicions of the dealers, and they set on foot a rigid investigation of the extraordinary phenomena. At length it was discovered that the fortunate stranger fixed up the tickets to suit the drawings in this way: He purchased perhaps a package of tickets, and, after the drawings, he xamined the schedule to see what would have drawn. He then went to work and pasted the numbers on a ticket to suit the schedule, in a manner so clever as to deceive some of our sharp est dealers. He got wind of the investigations and left in time to escape punishment. The Shelby College Lottery was the sufferer.

[Correspondence of the Louisville Courier.] Western Railroads—St. Louis a Fast Place, with Fast People—Dance Houses—Shooting Match— Theatricals—Hotels—Steamboats—Ketuckians, &c. Sr. Louis, April 20, 1859.

Editors of the Louisville Courier: Railroads are a necessary evil, especially in the West. The age is progressive, persons must travel, and consistant with the restless impatient spirit character-istic of no other people, the fastest mode of con-veyance is with us most popular. So railroads are patronized, yet while they annihilate time and are patronized, yet while they annihilate time and space, they are uncomfortable and a bore. Leaving Louisville on Sunday night per New Albany and Salem Railroad, we made close connection (in railroad parlance) with the Ohio and Mississippi at Mitchell. The trip was made tolerable be the humor and oddities of "Yankee Bierce," the comedian, (who had the honor of accompanying us,) and the polite attentions of Mr. W. C. Lucas, the conductor. Thence over the Ohio and Mississippi Railroad, through a vast expanse of water, cold and damp country, we reached St. Louis, the great city of the west.

Those who dream of the future greatness of Louisville and have not traveled, cannot compremediately to the College of Nassua Hall, Princton, N. J., where he was graduated in the fall of 1792. He was so young that there was some question about the lawfulness of his degree, as he was then just sixteen years of age. He studied law in Virginia, attending the lectures of St. George Tucker in William and Mary College.

He came to Kentucky in the year 1797, and having of course, from his early attainments at the Colleges, high rep utation as a young man of uncommon talent and information, he very soon had a capsiderable practice.

In 1807 he was appointed District Attorney of the United States, and the same year he was com-missioned Judge of the Court of Appeals; and in 1809 he was appointed Chief Justice of Kentucky. In 1811 he was elected Senator in Congress for six Louisville and have not traveled, cannot comprehend the greatness of this city. Extending for miles along the banks of the Father of the Waters, and nearly three miles west, it comprises a population of at least 175,000. Business too, unlike Louisville, is not confined to a few streets, but is general throughout its entire domains. It is a fast place. Fast men and horses, and faster woyears; but this he resigned at the end of three years. In 1815 he was appointed reporter of the decisions of the Court of Appeals. In 1822 he was elected, with Mr. Clay, Commissioner to Va. in reference to what was called the occupying claimant law, which Virginia contended was a violation of the compact with her. In 1826 he was again appointed Chief Justices and in 1826 he was again appointed. nen are prevalent, and life in many phases is such as those whose fate it is to exist in your ity do not know, as perhaps it is well they should ot. One feature here is that of licensed dance the compact with her. In 1826 he was again appointed Chief Justice; and in 1828 he again resigned, and was again elected Senator to Congress. When the Louisville Chancery Court was established in 1835 he was appointed Chancellor; and his presiding here will be long remembered for the learning, the dignity, and the importance he brought to the establishment of the court. He was an able and learned jurist; and an extremely industrious and painstaking Judge on every bench he had occupied.

In 1844, he resigned the office of Chancellor, and was appointed Secretary of the Traasury of the United States. Editors Louisville Courier: The anniversary lovely morning. At seven o'clock the drums beat to arms, and in a few moments the entire army was engaged in drill. It was a pleasant sight to see four thousand noble looking fellows going through the manual of arms, and the most difof the Peoples' Bank, of Richmond, Ind. [Correspondence of the Louisville Courier.] RANTOUL, ILL., April 16th, 1859. Editors Louisville Courier: 1 propose writing you a letter from this point, upon matters and things in general, and the only apology I have to offer for the same, will be, the want of a something else of more interest to myself to do, together with the idea conceived, that some of your readers may be interested in the present aspect of agricultural matters in this section of the State. of agricultural matters in this section of the State. So much, in fact, depends upon the success of the crop, that I doubt not, all classes and professions of men must feel a deep interest in the successful productions of every branch of agriculture. I am in Champaigne county—about ten miles from Urbana, its county seat—situated upon the branch Illinois Central railroad, and near one hundred and twenty miles south of Chicago. Champaigne county is a large and very fertile section of country, and Urbana is improving rapidly, under the rule and guide, principally, of an energetic and respectable class of people from Urbana, Ohio. By the transposition, they do not appear to have lost any of their vitality, but really, from the stringency of matters here, they have become more than revived.

In my travels through this State, I have met

In my travels through this State, I have met with many farmers, and many of them old Ken-tuckians, and they have invariably arrived at one mmon conclusion with reference to the wheat rop, to-wit: that it is too uncertain to be con-dered reliable, as regards the fall or spring heat. But little fall wheat was sown, and that little bids fair to be much of a failure generally. I have had the pleasure of witnessing only a few good fields of wheat, and I have seen many The absence of snow this last winter, and the much continuous rain, with now and then the freezes, have each and all contributed to what I believe will prove a general failure of the fall wheat. The spring wheat is relied upon by some, but so far only a small contribute has but so far, only a small quantity has been sown. I find it so very wet here, that I deem it impossible to get grain in the ground in a condition to be available. The whole country is submerged-all the rivers creeks, sloughs, &c., are overflowing their banks. High-legged boots are in much demand here, even upon horseback. This is a fine time for ducks, wild eese, &c., to those who like the sport. I swim oorly—am a poor water-dog—and hence do not enture far from shore. There has been a general revolution in senti-

There has been a general revolution in senti-ment in the last two years here, with reference to the farming interest. Then they conceived that all you had to do was to plant sod corn, and you would have an abundance of the article. Sow wheat at any time, and in any manner, and you would raise enough of wheat to pay all expenses, and the cost of land be-sides. Such theorizing and speculations led thousands of good and solvent men from older States to come out here and invest their all in arms, &c., and, alas, but too late, they find out that all such talk has proven so much gasconade, and that they are hopelessly ruined. Sirs, I had conceived the idea already, before I left on a business trip here, that everything depended here upon this year's productions, as to whether the State, as an agricultural State, would sustain itself, but I feel already that that question is much settled. It certainly is conceded here, so far as the production of wheat is concerned, and for all practical purposes, it is conceded also, that should this year fail to bring forth good crops, the State will be bankrupt as to farming interests.

Already have many men been constrained to eave their lands and have their property sacriiced. This is a rich harvest for a lawyer who knows even enough to file a petition praying a oreclosure of a mortgage. Those who purchased railroad lands are in a much worse condition than others, as they started upon less capital.— Many of them have had renewals at eight per cent understand, but I fear it will deprive them of hat much more of life's blood. The revolution of entiment alluded to will work for good, I have no doubt, in this: that now there is a sufficien restriction placed upon that speculative fever or mania, which ran into all kinds of extravagances which restriction operates to influence them to resort to more practical and general farming. No one crop can succeed here. In the South the at-tention may alone be directed to cotton or sugar and result in profit—but even there, I venture to assert, that those who raise all they eat, or who even approximate to it, do make the most money. But especially here should farmers raise wheat corn, oats, timothy, and their own hogs, and no give their und vided attention to any one article is they have done that of wheat. The reason is too apparent for me to consume time. All the grasses succeed well here, and hence just now there is a disposition to stock. Times are hard here, I need not say, and money scarce. A gold ncertainties again, just as problematical as

But our Government is a good one, and pos sesses all the powers necessary to protect the rights between man and man, and to mete out justice to negro thieves. The Supreme Court of the United States, in its decision in the Dred Scott case, is clear on the point that slave property should be protected in the Territories. Here is its opinion:

The different railroads leading into the city have had their bridges swept away, and two accidents have been the result, causing the death of several persons, of which you doubtless have heard by telegraph. Business was very brisk on the wharf to-day, and excitement run high among steamboatmen. The Southerner and Dick ey were back again from the race up the river last week. The friends of each claim the championship. The Daniel Boone had returned from a trip for repairs to St. Louis, having come hominside of 24 hours from that city. She went up above the wharf, three miles, and straightened for a "run" past the city, which was done a little faster, perhaps, than would have been agreeable even to the high-headed Alvin Adams. The Boone screamed the railroad whistle (cattle on the track) to several down stream packets that had backed out ahead of her, and darted past them as swiftly as the wild deer, represented in the painting on her wheel house, fled from the approach of the pioneer of civilization in Kentucky.

Signs of Returning Prosperity.—After the long stagnation which has affected the trade and industry of the country, we are glad to perceive that the former gives signs of a revival which, in spite of contrary anguries, we hope may prove to be as permanent as it appears to be decided. From the official returns of receipts from customs for the last quarter, as far as they are known, it appears that they afford assurance of yielding a revenue almost, if not quite, equal to the estimates of the Secretary of the Treasury as submitted to Congress in his first annual report, and which, at the time, were generally supposed to fix the income likely to accrue from the present tariff at a higher rate than was warranted by the probable importations of the country. The receipts at the New York Custom House for the three months ending on the 31st ult. are stated at about $10,300,000, which, with the revenues collected at other ports, will furnish, it is believed, an aggregate amount not much, if at all, below $15,000,000. The expectations of Mr. Cobb, under this head, being so nearly realized as to relieve the Treasury from any unexpected pressure, it is represented that with the assistance afforded by the re-issue of the Treasury notes, and in the absence of the demands which the Postoffice Department would have made if the regular Appropriation Bill for this branch of the public service had not failed, the Secretary of the Treasury has no reason to appre-Secretary of the Treasury has no reason to apprehend any embarrassment during the interval extending from the present time to the next annual meeting of Congress. PRESIDENT BOARD INTERNAL IMPROVEMENTS

LOUISVILLE:APRIL 23, 1859. SATURDAY,.

Reading Matter on Every Page. Hancock County, Kentucky.

In the month of March, 1829, Hancock county came into existence by an act of the Legislature of Kentucky, approved the 3d day of the preceding January. The new county was made from portions of Breckinridge, Daviess and Ohio, and named Hancock in honor of the first signer of the Declaration of American Independence and the second President of the immortal Congress which adopted that Declaration.

Nature did much for the new county. She washed her northern boundary with the navigable waters of the beautiful Ohio, and spread out for miles from its shore a rich alluvial soil. On the hills she planted a noble forest, and beneath the surface of the earth deposited inexhaustible beds of coal to warm and enrich the generations that were to come. She made the new county the abode of agriculture, manufactures and commerce, the three great enrichers of men and nations.

For thirty years, an honest and thrifty people out down the forest, and cultivated the soil, and dug the coal, and carried on trade, and accumulated wealth, until the population of the county numbered 3,000, and the assessed value of their taxable property reached $2,000,000. And during these thirty years, the people of this county stood well at home and abroad, without a stain up on the escutcheon of their character for what ennobles our race.

At length, however, evil fortune came upon them, and chose the anniversary month of the new county to fix upon its people a deep disgrace. The county came into existence in March. 1829, and in March 1859, it may be said to have gone out of existence-at least, out of the honorable existence which for a generation had permitted no man to feel ashamed of being a citizen of Han-

It is needless to say what this disgrace was. The world is full of the shame which attaches to the murder of Thos. S. Lowe, by H. S. Davidson and Thomas Withrew, in the jail of Hawesville, the county seat. He was placed in that jail under a promise of protection, but while he was in carcerated, and wounded, and exhausted, and unarmed, and defenceless, Davidson and Withrow went ness of fiends in human shape, and came out of the prison boasting of the deed.

This atrocious and dastardly murder, coupled with the action of the Grand Jury in refusing to indict Withrow and Davidson, and the publica tion of a defense of the assassination with an ap peal to the citizens in g eneral for indorsement, i what has fixed disgrace upon Hancock county .-The guilty are not alone concerned in the matter, but the people of the whole county have been published to the world as approvers of the mur

If those guilty of Lowe's murder were the only sufferers, all would be well. But such is not the case. The innocent are the worst sufferers, from the fact that they have more character to lose The trade of the county is seriously injured by boats refusing to land within its borders for coal or freight or passengers. Some of the best citizens have been driven into exile, and others are daily in fear of assassination because they dare to think and to say that Lowe, even if he deserved death, should not have been murdered as he was.

There is but one remedy for this state of things in Hancock county. The good citizens there must stand by the laws of their country. They must empanel a Grand Jury that will not fear to indict Thomas Withrow and H. S. Davidson for murder. They must try these men for their life, and so dispel the reign of terror now in Haweswille, that a jury of their peers will not fear to convict Withrow and Davidson of murder in the first degree. And public opinion must be so cured of the poison which the mur derers and their army of bullies have infused into it, that the assassins may be hung as high as Haaman when a jury finds them guilty, and the court pronounces the just sentence of death against them.

This is plain talk, but it is the right sort of talk. Nothing short of the course marked out by us will lift the disgrace which now hangs over Hancock county for the murder of Lowe, and the justification of the deed by the Grand Jury, and the publication of a subsequent defense of the crime in the name of all the best citizens of the entire county. The publication was a libel, and some of the names in it a forgery, but still many people at home and abroad will hold the county responsible for it until the murder of Lowe is avenged by the laws of his country. Whether Lowe deserved death canno be a question with any good citizen; for no sane man can think of justifying the manner in which he was assassinated. The records of crime in Kentucky afford no parallel to this cowardly and atrocious deed, and the deep disgrace that attaches to the whole people among whom it was commit ted, can only be wiped out by bringing the craven assassins to speedy and deserved punishment.

State Debts of the Olden World.

The Opposition are crying out lustily at the extravagance which has created a debt of a few millions in this country. They hope to make a little political capital thereby, though they are the very fellows who have voted in Congress for the ex travagant measures which have led to the pitiful debt Uncle Sam owes. If the United States owed anything like the debt of some of the European States, these bawling Oppositionists might hav something to shriek about. To owe an hundred millions of dollars in Europe is a small matter for even a third-rate power, and the whole debt owed by the various powers there exceeds ten billions of dollars.

The principal debts of European States are as follows: Great Britain, $3,876,563,470; France, $1,606, 388,498; Austria, $1,209,420,000; Russia, $1,041, 414,123; Spain, $732,205,548; Holland, $450,395, $87; and Prussia, Portugal, Sardinia, Belgium, and Denmark, severally, owe more than one hundred millions. Now, what might not these howling Opposition ists say and do if Uncle Sam owed the debt of England, France, Austria, Russia, or even Spain? They would no doubt take the horrors, extinguish their dark-lanterns, and live on bread and water the rest of their days. The Northern wing would hardly undertake another underground railroad in half a century, and the Southern wing would sell out their entire stock in brass-knucks to help FAMILY SEWING MACHINES.

Uncle Sam to pay his debts. Even upon this continent there are State debts owed by other powers which make ours somewhat of a picayune concern. The Central and South American States owe $308,696,014, of which Mexico is set down for $133,526,242; Brazil, $73,277,250: Peru, $36,451,887; Venezuela, $22,865,620; and the others various sums, from one quarter of a mil-

French Railroads

There are no better railroads in the world than hose of France. They are not so substantial as in England, nor so unsubstantial as in this counfewer accidents happen upon them than upon the roads of England or America.

The principal French railways, moreover, pay a fair dividend upon the capital invested. Their reports for 1858 show quite an advance upon the previous year, and the probability is that the year 1859 will show an improvement upon the their well conducted roads, and hence the large dividends

The traffic returns on the Eastern of France Railway, from the 1st of January to the 30th of December, 1858, both inclusive, amounted to £2,-168,337, against £1,921,063 in the corresponding period of 1857, showing an increase of £247,274; on the Northern of France to £2,203,481, against £2, 59,084 in the corresponding period of 1857, showing an increase of £144,397; on the Western of Co., No. 21 Chartres street, New Orleans. France to £1,781,273, against £1,671,617, showing an increase of £59,657; and on the Southern of France to £723,502, against £582,154, showing an increase of £141,349. The receipts for the same period of 1858, on the Paris and Orleans Railway, amounted to £2,335,950, against £2,293,381 in the corresponding period of the preceding year, showing an increase of £42,569. The receipts on the Paris, Lyons and Mediterranean Railway amount ed to £3,267,274 against £3,168,598 in the preceding year, showing an increase of £98,676. The receipts on the Lyons and Geneva, for the same period of 1858, amounted to £193,924, against £105,961, showing an increase of £87,963. The total receipts of those seven railways during the above 365 days of 1858, amounted to £12,923,641 on 4,980 miles of railway, and for the corresponding period of 1857, to £11,801,858 on 4,481 miles, showing an increase n the receipts of £821,883, or about 7 per cent.. and in the mileage of 504 miles, or 111/2 per cent.

The Guthrie Movement in Indiana.

We do not think there can be a reasonable oubt as to the fact that the Hon. James Guthrie. f nominated by the Charleston Convention, can earry the State of Indiana in 1860. We have heretofore published favorable notices of him from several of the papers in that State, and our belief in his strength there is confirmed by letters from and by conversations with residents of that State, who are well posted as to the state of things on that side of the Ohio.

The Evansville Journal of a recent date speaks of Mr. Guthrie in the following style: The name of James Guthrie seems to be an exceedingly popular one for the Presidency with the Democratic press in Kentucky and Tennessee.—We most sincerely hope it may be adopted as heartily by the press of the party throughout the country, for if the Opposition shall be defeated by their opponents, there will be no danger to the country in the triumpb, with such a man as James Guthrie at the head of the Administration.

And the Vincennes Western Sun copies an arti cle from the New York Tribune, to the effect that Mr. Guthrie is the strongest of all the Democratic candidates, and adds that the movement in his favor for the Presidency in 1860, " enforces recog ition in all quarters."

The following extract from a long letter written by one of the staunchest and best informed Democrats in Indiana is worth noticing in this con-

I believe that your Mr. Guthrie stands the best chance of any Democrat in the nation for the nomination of the Charleston Convention. He has been building railroads instead of dealing in politics, of late, and this was lucky for him. The same questions that slew Douglas and others might have hurt him had his position been descanted upon by the people and the press of the nation, as that of Douglas, Breckinridge, Hunter and others have been. It is fortunate for Mr. Guthrie that he has been out of the conflict which has led to the political death of others; and if Mr. Guthrie will keep his mouth shut, and answer no questions, from now until the meeting of the Convention, but stand upon his past record just as the people of different sections of the country I believe that your Mr. Guthrie stands the best Convertion, but stand upon his past record just as the people of different sections of the country choose to interpret it, he will be nominated certain, and will as surely be elected President of the United States in 1860. He is in my opinion the only man now before the country upon whom the Democracy of the North and South can unite in 1860.

THE SUGAR CROP .- The largest sugar crop we ave had in this country for the last ten years was at nearly 450,000 hogsheads. The next largest yield within this period was the crop of 1858 which is the last estimated. This is put down a 365,000 hogsheads. The crop for the last ter years has been as follows:

Senator Brown, of Mississippi, on the Protection of Slave Property in the Territories. The following extract from Senator Brown's speech, during the recent debate between him and Douglas, presents in a nut shell his idea of protection of slavery in the Territories:

"Now, when a Territorial Legislature refuses protection for my slave property I mean to come to Congress, and this will be my speech: "Senators, this Territorial Legislature is your creature; you breathed it into existence; it could not live in hour but under the sunshine of your approval I come to tell you that your creature is not obey-ing the Constitution—that your creature is deny-ing to me rights guaranteed to me by the sacred charter of our liberties, as expounded by the highest judicial tribunal in the land; your crea-ture denies to me protection for my slave property. I come to ask you, the master, whether yo will grant me the protection."

TRIBUTE TO A "MARTYR."-The Roman Catho for obeying the teachings of his father and priest, rather than the rules of the school, a magnificent silver goblet. Around the brim is inscribed: "We are ready to die rather than to transgress the laws of God received from our fathers. II. Mac cabees, c. vii., v. 2d." Beneath is a cross, with the legend, "In hoc signo vinces." Upon the body of the goblet are these words: "The Cathedral Schools of Covington, Ky., to Thomas I. TRUE ELOQUEGCE.—A young Irish girl who was rendering testimony against an individual in a court of law, said: "I am sure he never made his mother smile." There is a comprehensiveness and intensity of expression in this simple sentence to which we have seldom if ever, seen a parallel. Such a history of hard-heartedness and deprayity, was surely never before compressed into eight was surely never before compressed into eight

READ! READ! READ!—"Ye afflicted read," the foliowing Certificate of a cure of over twenty years' standing:

H. T. HELMDOLD—Dear Sir: I have been troubled with an affliction of the Bladder and Kidneys for over twenty years. I have tried Physicians in vain, and at last concluded to give your Genuine Preparation a trial, as I had heard it highly spoken of. It afforded me immediate relief. I have used three bottles, and I have obtained more relief from its effects, and feel much better than I have for twenty years previous. I have the greatest faith in its virtues and curative powers, and shall do all in my power to make it known to the afflicted. Hoping that this may prove advantageous to you in assisting you to introduce the medicine.

I am truly yours,
M. MCOORMICK.

Nearly a Panic.—This morning there was a perfect rush to get some of McLean's Strengthening Cordial. It is astonishing what a large quantity of that article is consumed. It shows onclusively that it is just the thing required in conditions that it is just the thing required in malaria or fever districts, as a preventive for Chill, alias Shakes. "Everybody and the rest of mankind" should try it, if they wish to become healthy and strong, and those that are well should take a little every morning to keep them so. We have tried it.—Evening Mirror.

court, saying he wished to make an explanation in regard to the testimony of Doyle. "I have simply to state that Doyle was utterly mistaken in saying that I had told him these papers were found on the person of Key at the time of the coroner's inquest; what happened afterwards I do not know, because I left at the conclusion of the testimony and did not go back."

James Dudron recalled—I did not think Sickles was any more excited than any other man would be in a fight or anything of that kind; when the last shot was fired I was thirty-five or forty-five feet from him; did not hold any conversation with

Francis H. Smith examined by Carlisle: Am an official of the corps of reporters for the House of Representatives; was in the House on Friday and Saturday, 25th and 26th of February last; Sickles made speeches on those days; I do not know at which hour Sickles spoke on Friday, I think he spoke about 5 o'clock; I cannot state at what hour this speech of Saturday was made; I only judge that it was about 4 o'clock because the House met that it was about 4 o'clock because the House met at 11 and adjourned at 9, and this occurs about he middle of the day's proceedings. Brady admitted that the corrections in the man

Some time was occupied by the witness in ex-amining the manuscript of Saturday's proceed-ings in the House. During the time there were frequent conferences between Sickles and his requent conferences between Sickles and his counsel, and a general conversation was indulged by the Judge, and the jury took advantage of a pause in the proceedings and left the court.

Over half an hour passed before proceedings were resumed; in the meantime the three absent witnesses were inquired after, but none of them made their appearance. The counsel for the prosecution endeavord to bring forward evidence to show the private character of Sickles, especially in connection with his stopping with a lady over night at Barnum's Hotel in Baltimore. The Judge decided such evidence not admissible.

Ould said that when the law as applicable to this case shall have been declared by the Court, then only the prosecution would assent to the proposition, but the case has not yet reached that point.

Chilton would withhold reply to this until the prosecution have announced the evidence concluded on their side of the question.

Carlisle submitted instructions to counsel for the defence, who will prepare counter instructions, to be argued to-morrow morning.

The Mustang Liniment appeared to extract the palh. It healed rapidly, without soreness, and left no sear of account. Yours truly, CHARLES FOSTER."

Such language as this is but the constant and natural echo wherever this article is used.

This Liniment is indispensable to planters and owners of horses and mules. Mr. John Daniels, Montgomery, Ala., sold a slave for $500, who was raised rom utter uselessness by this Liniment. Every family should have it. Be very particular and enquire for the Mustang Liniment, and take no other.

LINES, Affectionately inscribed to my Little Niece, Sal BY SALLIE G. ATKINSON Like early spring, all light and gladness,

So, sweet child, thy life is now-Not a trace, or cloud, of sadness. E'er hath crossed thy sunny brow For tho' tears have filled thy blue eyes Smiles soon chased them all away-

Like the dew from cloudless bright skies, Melting 'neath the sun's first ray. When gloom and sorrow rise awhile,

To dim my young heart's joy and gladness, Sallie Ella's roguish smile Soon dispels those thoughts of sadness.

Scarce a year and a half hath rolled O'er her bright and lovely brow; Yet her curls, like brightest gold,

Would shame the fairest blossom now. For like a bud of beauty rare, Is my little niece and pet, With dimpled face, and eyes as clear As star-gems in you blue sky set.

Oft I watch her childish ways Whilst she seeks to imitate Cunning tricks and merry plays, Which she thinks is wond'rous great

And so she's learnt my name to call-Ha Shasshe, by her own words set, In baby talk more sweet than all. Yes, my little namesake dear

Is a being made to love; Oh! may her path thro' life be clear, Watched by angels from above. Like love's young dream, as bright and fair,

So is her artless beauty yet; Still it shall be my earnest prayer, For Heaven to bless my darling pet LOUISVILLE, March, 1859.

My eyes involuntarily wandered over the apartment. A little table stood in the corner, beneath the grated window. "Then when he was gone, I would fly to my chamber, lock the door, and give myself up to an uncontrollable fit of weeping for very shame. We had been married about a year. One eve ing (would to God I could blot from the record fime that fatal night; but it lives like a hissing fiery serpent in my memory, and has doomed me to utter despair in this world, and I fear the next) my husband did not return at the usual hour. I felt myself sorely grieved. An hour more, yet

She said their carriage vaited at the door for myself and Ernest. I too her Ernest had not yet returned from his office, and I could not go. She looked disappointed. A sudden thought seized me. Would it not be capital revenge for his neglect of me to find the par-lor deserted when he came? I went to the opera. We were scarcely seated in our box when a party entered a box opposite. The blood rushed back to my heart, and my pulse stood still as I recog-nized Ernest, my Ernest, my husband, and leaning upon his arm one of the most beautiful young creatures my eyes ever beheld. This was my first impression, for there quickly followed so deadly nd jealous a hatred as made her look positive husband might not discover me, and from my concealment I waiched them with glaring eyes. I heard nothing, saw nothing else; and when ence rallied by my companions, I replied that I was not well, and begged to be left to myself.

"Then with the fierceness of a tiger fearful of losing his prey, I turned my eyes towards my husband and his 'guilty paramour.' She seemed to be enjoying the performance intensely, but he seemed to see nothing but her. His head was bowed towards her, and she would occasionally hit her eyes to his face. Then I saw him smile (just as he had smiled on me a thousand times,) while he bent still lower over her with renewed "Each movement was like a red hot dagger

"Each movement was like a red hot dagger piercing my heart. I knew not what demon possessed me; I think I must have been mad when I vowed a terrible revenge. "Twere better, I reasoned, that he should die while yet there existed in his heart a spark of love for me, then to see him little by little drawn away by the syren, till perhaps I should be utterly deserted, and left with all my blind love eating away my heart strings like a consuming fire.

"At my request we left the opera at an early hour, and with a terrible purpose I entered my home. But what was that home now to me? The love that had brightened it was no longer mine. Some demon furnished me with resolution to exe

"It had been our custom sometimes to drink a glass of sweet wine of an evening when we were alone. I drew the table to the fire, placed the decanter and glasses. Then with trembling hands I brought a deadly opiate, the nature of which I well knew. The first effect it produces was a deep sleep, which in a few hours terminated in the still sleep of death. I filled the glasses, and into one I dropped the drug. All was done with rapidity, lest my resolution should fail me.

I dropped the drug. All was done with rapidity, lest my resolution should fail me.

"When all was ready I paced up and down the room, nursing the fires which raged within my bosom, by recounting to myself the wrong I had suffered. I pictured to myself my idelized husband lying still and cold before me, and I fell into a passionate fit of weeping. Then I drew another picture. I saw him draw from me, giving his love to another. I thought of all the agony I had suffered that night, and imagined how much deeper would be my wrong if I spared him. At that moment I heard his night key in the latch, and he soon entered the room. I stood in the recess of the window, where he did not at once observe me. The wine first attracted his attention, the fatal glass. I saw him lift it to his lips, drain its contents, and I fell fainting to the floor.

"I knew no more for several hours. When I rallied I was lying upon the sofa; the lamp was burning dimily—an easy chair was wheeled to my side, and in it I saw the form of my husband. I sprang quickly up. The drug was doing its work. He was in a heavy slumber, and already his breath came thicker and shorter, and his pulse beat but faintly.

not arrive till after I had gone out. It ran as follows:

"Excuse me, Aggy dear, from coming home to tea. My sister of whom I spoke to you this morning, has come home and has sent for me to come to her. If she is not too weary, I will take you both to the opera this evening, and will call for you at eight. Your loving HUSBAND.

"Now, for the first time, I remembered that he had told me in the morning that an only sister of his, who had been absent several years, was expected home that day. His parents resided in cted home that day. His parents resided in other part of the city. 'He would call for me eight.' I had gone out earlier, and probably by some carelessness of the carrier, the note had not arrived before the time. I afterwards learned that he did call for me, and being told that I had gone to the opera with some friends, and probably had not received his note, he proceeded to that place with his sister, hoping to find me there

"A wild hope that he might yet be roused seized me, and I sprang to his side. But alas! too late! He had ceased to breathe. "Oh! heaven of heavens! what evil had my blind, passionate temper wrought me and mine. Again I became insensible.

"I opened my eyes. Loving, tear-stained faces bent over me. A soft hand was gently stroking my temples, and I gazed into the face of that gentle sister, whom I had never seen save upon that fatal night. She kissed me and whispered,

Dear Aggy, you are the greatest sufferer of 'I was told that I was found in the morning by the servant, lying upon the floor insensible, and my husband reclining in his chair, dead! "It seemed that suspicion had not rested upon myself. The coroner was called, and his verdict,

Died by the visitation of God.'

'Died by the visitation of God.'

"Heaven only knows how I loathed and hated myself. I longed to confess the truth, but for the sake of others, forbore to reveal what would have brought upon the family deep disgrace and additional grief. A long illness followed, and my reason reeled. I was carried back to my parents. I could not remain in the house which had been the scene of my sin and punishment.

"Years passed; I grew no better, but was still trembling upon the verge of insanity, yet retain-ing sufficient reason to distinctly remember my sorrow, and to understand what was passing around me. What was perhaps strange, I was conscious of my mental condition.

"Years passed, and my parents both died. I was placed in the care of an uncle, who was my only natural guardian. From him I had inherited the selfish passion which had been my ruin. "For a time I lived in his house, but he found me too great a trouble, and under pretence of so-licitude for my recovery he placed me in the insane asylum. I knew that it was only to get me out of his way that he might have no hindrance in possessing himself of my large fortune. But I did not object. I felt I deserved it all.
"Twelve years have I spent in this retreat.
Every one has been extremely kind to me. During that time I have never seen my uncle. It is almost over; I feel that I shall soon follow to that dark ourne where in my frenzy I sent my noble husoand nearly twenty years ago. I have read the Bible—I have tried to pray."

We published about a week since, a brief state nent of the wreck of the French ship St. Paul, on the Island of Rossel, in the South Pacific, in Sep tember last, and the subsequent massacre of thre undred and twenty-nine of her three hundred and thirty Chinese passengers. The survivor was rescued by the steamer Styx, and has furnished the following narrative to the Sydney, Australia "The ship went on shore during the night, and when she struck, the passengers all rushed on deck making a great outcry, upon which the cap-tain drove them all below again. When daylight broke, we landed by means of the boats on an sland, where we remained two days without any water, when some of us went on board the ship again to get some, as also provisions. The cap-tain left in his boat with some of his crew, and we were not disturbed by the natives for a month after he was gone; they then came over from the mainland, distant about three quarters of a mile and made an attack on us. Some of us had dou-ble-barrelled carbines, but we got frightened and threw them away. The only white man left with us, after the departure of Captain Pennard, was a Greek, who, having armed himself with a cutlass, fought desperately, and killed a great many of the the flesh, and eat it; what was not consumed, being they were taken out, and beaten all over (except ing the head) with a kind of a club, and then dispatched by ripping the stomach open. The body parcued by ripping the stomach open. The body was then cut up in small pieces and divided, the fingers, toes and brains being eagerly sought after. The bones were then collected, and either burnt or thrown away. I saw ten of my fellow-passengers killed in this way. On one occasion some of the Chinese took a boat which belonged to the ship and went over to the mainland at night to get some water but never returned so night to get some water, but never returned, so we thought they had been killed. Every day they brought us cocoa nuts or some wild roots to eat, and appeared to be quite friendly with us. This state of things continued until I was taken off the island. When I left there were only four Chinese and the Greek alive, all the rest having been killed. I saw those five the day the steemer came and the Greek alive, all the rest having been killed. I saw these five the day the steamer came in sight, but when the natives saw the boats coming on shore, they took them to the mountains. I was sick and lame, and they would not carry me, so that I watched my opportunity and contrived to conceal myself among the rocks until the boat came on shore. They are very numerous, but do not appear to have any chiefs among them. They live on cocoa nuts, of which there are large quantities, and a kind of yam, which they roast before eating: but, beyond a few dogs. I saw neither anives of that city, from Wisconsin, on a warrant for extensive forgeries, whereby he realized about $42,000 in money, and swindled the bankers of most of the northwestern cities, in a complete and scientific manner. He made no resistance to his arrest, but submitted quietly, and did not deny the commission of the offenses charged upon him. Since his arrest, it has been discovered that the forgeries were not his only crime, but that he is quilty of the more flagrant crime of runing on guilty of the more flagrant crime of ruining an innocent and confiding girl, and the unhappiness of a wife who had been deserted with her children for another. It appears that a short time since, previous to his removal to Wisconsin, and while he was living in St. Joseph county Indiana, he became alarmed for his safety, and, fearing arrest, concluded to leave home. He then revealed the whole matter to his wife, confessing his crimes, and appearing his determination to seek safety. and announcing his determination to seek safety in concealment. ADULTERY, FRATRICIDE AND SUICIDE.—The Vicks burg True Southern, of the 5th inst., has the following account of a dreadful tragedy in Mississippi:

—"A gentleman from Washington county has informed us of one of the most shocking affairs, including fratricide and suicide, that has ever come to our knowledge. It appears that two brothers, named William and Robert Buford, have been residing near Rogue Phalish, in Washington. been residing near Bogue Phaliah, in Washington county, for some time past. The elder, William Buford, had a very pretty wife with whom the younger brother, Kobert, became madly infatuat-ed. A criminal intercourse between the two had been carried on for some time, but growing weary of the restraints imposed by the presence of the injured husband, the younger brother determined to add to his other crime the damning one of fratricide. On Wednesday evening of last week the outraged husband and brother was murdered, and on the Sunday following, the murderer com-mitted suicide by taking strychnine. Crane had, a short time before, struck Saddler with a walking-cane. Saddler discharged one barrel of a double-barreled gun at him, at a short distance; Crane received at least twelve buckshot in his body, and fell crying "murder." Saddler ran to the back door of the house, where he was ensconced, ordered a negro to s ddle his horse instantly, but without waiting, sprang on the horse, and disappeared at full speed. LOUISVILLE PRIVATE MEDICAL DISPENSARY,

DR. GATES CAN BE consulted at his office—the one formerly occupied by Dr. Kingwhere he would call the attention of all those afflicted with diseases of a private or confidential nature, to the new method of treatment as practiced in the English and French hospitals. Having for several years the English and French hospitals. Having for several years made this class of diseases a speciality, with the knowledge he has of them, warrants him in saying that there is no form or symptom which they assame that is without a quick and permanent cure.

Young MEN—Who, by indulging in solitary habits, have contracted that mind-harrowing and body-destroying disease, seminal weakness, which leads to the most alarming and fatal consequences, should apply immediately, either in person or by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating this disease, which never fails of effecting a quick and radical cure.

MIDDLE-AGED and OLD MEN who, by excessive indulgence of their passions, have produced a debility in advance of their years, can consult Dr. Gates with the fullest assurance of being again restored to that state of health which they would have enjoyed had they never committed any excess.

Persons contemplating marriage, and having any doubts as to their physical ability to enter into that solemn contract, should apply at once to Dr. Gates, who will remove all obstacles to prevent a long and happy ife.

There are persons who indulge the fond yet irration al belief that nature is capable of resuming without as sistance her lost powers. To such I can only say, that the time which is wasted in this delay is precious and ir retrievable, and can only tend to perpetuate the ha it of hopeless imbedillity and render impotency per a ent.

retrievable, and can only tend to perpetuate the ha it of hopeless imbecility and render impotency per a ent.

During my residence in this city I have met with numerous cases in which the suffering have unfortunately placed themselves under the charge of those who are ignorant of the first principles of medicine, and whom it has been only by the utmost care and attention I have been enabled to cure. To all such as have been suffering under unsuccessful treatment, I would offer my services, guaranteeing that I can do all that is possible for experience and a thorough knowledge of diseases in all stages and forms to accomplish.

we copy from the New Orleans Freavune of Sunday last:

The officers of the D. R. Carroll, from Grand Ecore, 12th inst., report that on the night of the 14th inst., the levee at the mouth of Red River gave way, a short distance below the wharf boat, and at half-past ten A. M., when the Carroll passed that point, the break extended some fifty feet, through which the water was surging with a force, that if not soon cheeked, bade fair to enlarge the crevasse until it should equal any that has heretorore been known on the river. Negroes were rapidly assembling from the neighboring plantations, but little had been done when the boat passed to stay the flood or to prevent the devastation which it threatened. Bags filled with earth were hastily thrown into the chasm, but they had produced no sensible check on the rushing waters. Flour unchanged. Whisky dull and drooping, but not uotably lower. Nothing transpired in provisions so Bags filled with earth were hastily thrown into the chasm, but they had produced no sensible check on the rushing waters.

Below this parish we believe there is yet little destruction by the present flood. It is a little singular that the river at Vicksburg and above, in the immediate neighborhood of most extraordinary creasses, should now stand several inches above the flood of 1858, while below in this lower valley, and above Memphis the same height of water has not been attained.

The work of strengthening the levee at Carrollton proceeds quietly, those in the immediate vicinity entertaining no fears. The force on the point just below Hoey are performing the work which is called planking the levee, or staying it by the accumulation of earth on the land side and fascining.

Strampoar Sunk.—We learn from the officers of the Eleanor, which arrived from Jefferson, that the steamer Jos Holden, Capt. Martin, from this port bound to Jefferson, with a full cargo, sunk on Wednesday morning, 18th inst., in Twelve Mile Bayou, and in twelve feet water. The steamer Rescue, bound up, was alongside of the Holden taking out all the freight that could be saved. The boat will be a total loss, as she had broken in two when the Eleanor passed down. Several coal boat pilots arrived here yesterday, on the James Montgomery, which passed the point of the alleged disaster some forty-eight hours after its occurrence. They had not heard one word of the accident, and express the belief that it is, in part, at least, erroneous. They think it impossible for such a serious disaster to have occurred, and we hope it may turn out untrue.—Dispatches were sent to Vicksburg yesterday, but no answers were returned.

The boats belonged to the Messrs. Hyatt, and contained about 35,000 bushels of coal.

THE TRIAL OF HON. DANIEL E. SICKLES

WASHINGTON, April 22.—In the Sickles trial, the following are the instructions to the jury proposed to be submitted for the prosecution. It court, that the prisoner killed Phillip Barton Key, by discharging a pistol or pistols loaded with gun-powder and ball, thereby giving him a mortal wound or wounds, and that such killing was the willful and intentional act of the prisoner, and was induced by the belief that the said deceased had seduced his [the prisoner's] wife, and some day or days, or for any period, definite or in-definite, prior to the day of such killing, had adulterous intercourse with the said wife, and that the prisoner was not provoked to such killing by any assault or offer of violence then and there made by the deceased, upon or against him, then such willful and intentional killing, if found by the jury, upon all the facts and circumstances given in evidence, is murder; but such killing cannot be found to have been willful and intentional.

not be found to have been willful and intentional in the sense of this instruction, if it shall have been proved to the satisfaction of the jury, upon the whole evidence, that the prisoner was, in fact, insane at the time of such killing.

A painful scene occurred at the time of adjournment. Mr. Hart, who has been unremitting in acts of kindness to Mr. Sickles since the melan choly occurrence, and who has been constantly by his side, comforting and sustaining him, was forced to leave for New York this afternoon. On leave taking, both exhibited deep emotion.— Sickles almost fainted in the dock.
